HOOVER ABSOLVED BY SENATE LOBBY COMMITTEE

POLICE ROUT THUGS; KILL TWO OF THEM

Capture Third While Losing One Member Attacking Squad

Chicago, Jan. 14.—(UP)—Police trapped three bandits in the darkened corridor of a west side duplex apartment early today, opened fire with pistols and shotguns in the narrow quarters, killed two of the robbers, captured the third and lost one of their own number.

Warned by a buzzer signal, the detective squad surprised the bandits as they poked pistols into the ribs of Harry Sucherman, rich sausage company official, trying to force him to open a wall safe.

The three bandits slashed a panel from the door of the Sucherman apartment just before dawn, entered, roused Sucherman from bed and demanded that he open a wall safe containing a quantity of jewelry and money.

Through previous arrangement with his brother, Nate, who lives in the apartment above, Sucherman pressed a hidden buzzer and the brother called police. While the bandits flourished automatic pistols in Sucherman's face, a detective squad arrived and its members surrounded the house from front and rear at the same time.

Lieut. Edward Conroy was shot in the right arm as he stepped through the front door. He opened fire along the narrow hallway with his left hand as three detectives started firing from the rear. Another squad of five detectives arrived and joined the fighters, their riot guns roaring in the hallway.

Bandits Trapped
Trapped between the two fires the bandits fought until two of them fell. Residents of the apartment house crowded behind doors and beds as bullets crashed in the hallway and the well-to-do West Jackson Boulevard district reverberated with gunfire.

Detective Jeremiah Murphy, one of the attackers from the rear, fell shot to death in the first volley. One of the bandits, later identified as R. Holtzman, was killed in the hallway and another, Sam Wolfe, died on the way to Bridewell hospital.

Sam Wasserman, who police said is wanted in Detroit, ran upstairs after the shooting, closely followed by the police. They caught him and threw him through a window into the arms of the squad outside.

Wound Not Serious
Six Sucherman brothers live in the apartment house and had arranged some time ago the buzzer system of intercommunication in case bandits tried to raid their safe.

Lieut. Conroy's wound was not serious and after having it dressed he went to the bureau to aid in questioning Wasserman.

Repeated alarms to police headquarters sent in by the terrified neighbors brought more than 100 police to the scene by the time the shooting was over.

Sergeant William Marr, head of the second detective squad to arrive was credited with killing the two bandits. Marr rallied the corridor with scattering buckshot from his riot gun.

Sucherman lost $80 in currency to the bandits, which was recovered.

Armed Poses Seek Officer's Kidnapers
Chandler, Ariz., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Armed posses patrolled highways of three central Arizona counties today searching for a woman and two men who shot and kidnaped a deputy sheriff in Florence last night and wounded another deputy who attempted to stop their automobile near here.

The wounded officers, Joe Chapman of Florence and Lee Wright of Chandler, were taken to a hospital in Mesa, Ariz. Their condition was not known.

Six Die In Blast In Alabama Mine
Straven, Ala., Jan. 14.—(UP)—A use of a gas explosion, which claimed the lives of six miners at the endless Cahaba coal mine here late yesterday was sought today.

The blast killed Chalon Brantley, oleman Davis, Arthur Lawler and Robert Vernon, white, and two Negroes.

James Chesser, another member of the group which was at work about 50 feet below the surface at the time of the explosion, was seriously injured and taken to a hospital at Birmingham.

ASKS OPINION ON DISPOSAL SEIZED ALKY

States Attorney M. C. Keller Appeals To Atty. General

State's Attorney Mark C. Keller today addressed a communication to Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom at Springfield, asking for an opinion relating to the legal disposition of alcohol or other liquors seized in Lee county. The request for a final opinion is a result of court order that alcohol be delivered to hospitals in the county recently.

Representatives from two hospitals, who had been named to receive alcohol called at the county jail yesterday and Sheriff Ward Miller advised that he was delivering no liquor, acting upon the advice of the State's Attorney, until a correct interpretation of that section of the prohibition act relating to the disposition of liquor had been received from the office of the Attorney General.

Last week 105 gallons of alcohol seized shortly before Christmas from Ralph Barker of Chicago, was ordered distributed to the Dixon State Hospital and four hospitals in the county. Yesterday afternoon 185 gallons of alcohol seized from George Williams of Rockford, whose case was disposed of in the County Court, was also ordered to be distributed to three institutions. The order provided that 105 gallons be turned over to the Dixon State hospital and that 40 gallons be given to the Dixon and Amboy public hospitals respectively.

Williams with Attorneys Hall and Gimble appeared in the county court yesterday afternoon and pleaded guilty to an information charging transportation and possession of intoxicating liquor. Judge Leech assessed a fine of $1,500 and the costs. The court were paid and the case was continued 60 days until March 14 to permit Williams' friends to raise the $1,500.

Girl Fights Plea Of Trio For Freedom

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 14.—(UP)—Declaring that Leonard Rich, Emerson Wilson and Stanley Hurt, three DeKalb youths who are serving thirteen year sentences for an attack on her, lacked character and the spirit of manhood, Miss Dorothy Westervelt, DeKalb, appeared before the State Pardon Board today to oppose an appeal for a pardon by the trio.

Miss Westervelt's brother also appeared before the board and bitterly opposed the action of the trio in asking for a pardon. State's Attorney Castle of DeKalb county was present at the hearing but did not testify.

WABASH RIVER FLOOD THREAT IS INCREASED

Crest Of The Flood is Not In Sight Yet River Men State

Mt. Carmel, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Wabash river still was rising today. The stage this morning was 25.7 feet, more than six feet above the flood stage. Heavy rains fell again last night and it was predicted that the crest was not yet in sight.

A slight washout on the Big Four Railroad south of Paris delayed trains somewhat, but no other rail trouble was reported. A big levee north of Emmison is reported to have gone out, flooding 20,000 acres and causing a 15-inch drop in the river stage to 22.8 feet. The drop, however, is expected to be only temporary.

20,000 ACRES FLOODED

Vincennes, Ind., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A break in the Wabash river levee two miles west of Emmison, Ind., late last night, poured flood waters today over a farm area of more than 20,000 acres, damaging wheat and other crops. Not more than a dozen families live in the district flooded, and not was reported in danger.

Emmison is nine miles north of Vincennes. The break relieved at least temporarily flood conditions here, where the lower parts of the city were inundated. The river level dropped a foot after the levee gave way.

Flood conditions prevailed today at several points along the Wabash and White rivers and their tributaries. About 1,800 acres were flooded late yesterday by the break of a levee at Clinton, 20 miles north of Terre Haute.

More than a dozen state highways were closed to traffic by water which covered them from four to six feet deep in spots. Some re-routing of trains and interurbans was reported to avoid places where raging floods lapped at the tracks.

DRIVEN FROM HOMES

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Rising flood waters in Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee drove many families from their homes today as the rainfall of the past week continued in the lower Mississippi valley.

Several hundred families along the White and St. Francis rivers in Arkansas have been forced to quit their homes. Farm lands have been inundated and in some villages the water is more than two feet deep. Levees guarding valuable land and many towns in the vicinity of Big Lake are being patrolled.

In Kentucky the lower Ohio has flooded lands near Calhoun. At Hickman, Ky., the Mississippi has driven families from homes and flooded valuable lands.

Bottom lands in west Tennessee are under water but the important Reelfoot Lake levees were believed safe. Water was standing in the streets of Fulton, Ky., and Rives, Tenn.

In other states recently threatened the rivers are falling.

OHIO SITUATION

Cleveland, O., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A serious flood situation impends in Ohio today as many rivers already swollen far above normal, continued to rise. Rain, which has fallen almost constantly for more than a week, was falling again today in most parts of the state.

The greatest flood menace was at Youngstown where if the Mahoning river goes five inches higher it will force the shut down of many steel mills. The Mahoning was at six feet, nine inches above normal today, having risen two inches since midnight.

Lowlands at Warren were under deeper water today as the Tuscarawas river reached a height 52 1/2 inches above the Warren dam. It was still rising.

Rowboats were used in some sections of Massillon today to take children to school and men to work when numerous houses were surrounded by water one to two feet deep. The Tuscarawas had overflowed its banks there and was rising an inch an hour. Six streets were closed to traffic. One of them was four feet under water.

High water was reported in almost all sections of Ohio.

LEEVE DYNAMITED

Marks, Miss., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A huge gap was torn in the Cassidy Bayou levee, two miles south of Breiten, near here, by a charge of dynamite set off during the night by unidentified persons. Bloodhounds have been ordered here from Clarksdale to aid in a search for those responsible.

In the event of further rains it was feared that the opening in the (clankmen) who relieving continued on Page 21.

"GRUDGE MURDER" OF FILLING STATION ATTENDANT LAST EVE AT ROCKFORD MYSTERY TODAY

Police Seeking A Man Whom Victim Had Had Arrested

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Police today began a search for a man known as George Landershoot, for questioning in connection with the fatal shooting last night of William Brough, a gasoline station attendant.

Landershoot was arrested a week ago when Brough complained to police that Landershoot was raising a drunken disturbance at the gas station. Policemen said that he threatened to "get" Brough. It was also considered possible however, that Brough had been shot in an attempted holdup.

Search for the driver of an old automobile was being pressed today by police attempting to solve the murder of William Brough, 43, oil station attendant who was assassinated last night.

Brough's death was the second mysterious murder here within the last two months and like the gas pipe killing of Miss Cordelia Gummshelmer, school teacher who was beaten to death in her apartment, appeared to be without a motive.

Brough was shot through the head as he stepped from the door of his oil station when a coupe stopped in the driveway outside. The killer apparently fired from the machine and then sped away. Money in the cash register was not touched.

Police are investigating a report that Brough caused the arrest of a drunken driver on January 5, and that the man threatened at that time to "get him." Efforts are being made to communicate with the slain attendant's father, R. A. Brough, at Ellettsville, Ind. Brough was born at Bloomington Ind.

SELF-DEFENSE PLEA FOR DORR ON STAND TODAY

Claims He Was Acting As Peacemaker In O'Brien Home

Chicago, Jan. 14.—(UP)—Samuel Dor, testifying in his own defense against charges of murder, pictured himself today as a peacemaker in the O'Brien family rather than a fomentor of trouble, as charged by the state, which hopes to send him to the electric chair as the murderer of William O'Brien.

In face of his own and Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien's confessions that he killed O'Brien, Dor testified that on the night of the murder he and his wife twice settled quarrels between the O'Briens and on a third occasion O'Brien was killed in a scuffle over a revolver.

Dor, dapper and confident he could clear himself of the charges by his own testimony, was the first witness for the defense before a courtroom packed with curious spectators, mostly women.

Women Quarrel
So great was the jam outside the door before court opened that several women fell to quarreling and hair pulling in the corridor and one woman was ejected from the building.

"My wife and I continually acted as peacemakers in the O'Brien family," Dor testified.

Led by his attorney, Barratt O'Hara, Dor traced his acts the night last November when O'Brien was killed.

"Twice during the night Mrs. Dor and I went upstairs to separate the O'Briens," Dor said. "He was beating her and we interfered. The third time O'Brien had a gun and we scuffled. The gun went off and O'Brien was killed. I don't know whether he or I had the gun when it was discharged."

Denied Romance

Dor's plea of self defense was in direct contradiction to his and Mrs. O'Brien's confessions, both of which have been admitted into evidence.

Dor denied emphatically that he and Mrs. O'Brien carried on an illicit romance while O'Brien was working at night.

Dor said his confession was obtained by the police after they kept him without food for 30 hours and threatened to arrest his wife.

PROBE GIRL'S DEATH

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 14.—(UP)—Inquiry into the death of Iris A. Helmer, 19, who died in a Rockford hospital last night as the alleged result of a criminal operation was started today by Coroner Walter Julian. A youth, Wayne Wood, who took the girl to the hospital, was being sought.

The explosion, which was heard throughout the city, caused a rush of residents from their homes and business houses.

The east wall of the two-story brick plant was blown completely out. The fire department quickly gained control of the resulting fire. A large tank in which gas is stored outside the building was not damaged.

LEGISLATION TO DRY UP COUNTRY WILL BE SPEEDED

Congress Is Expected To Expedite Program of President

BULLETIN.

Washington, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A bill "to reduce crime and general discontent and desentment on the part of law-abiding American people against intolerable conditions" by repealing the national prohibition act was introduced today by Representative Sabath, Democrat, Illinois.

"By the adoption of this bill," Sabath said "beer and wines could be prescribed and used for medicinal purposes legally under the Volstead act thereby reducing crime and the general discontent and resentment against the present intolerable conditions as described by President Hoover, Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Attorney General Mitchell, in their reports and by the National Law Enforcement Commission.

By WALTER CHAMBLIN Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A nation that read with intense interest the most sweeping proposal for drying up America that has been advanced in the decade since the eighteenth amendment became part of the Constitution today directed its eyes to Capitol Hill as Congress moved to act upon the recommendations sponsored by President Hoover.

The consensus of the membership of the House and Senate was that there would be votes in both chambers to provide the legislation urged by the Chief Executive, who just a year and a half ago in accepting the nomination to his present office said he regarded prohibition as "a great social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far reaching in purpose."

First Move in House

First action toward carrying out the enforcement reorganization program is looked for in the House. Speaker Longworth said today in signing different phases of the program to six committees he had been prompted by a desire to expedite consideration.

He explained he found that the recommendations of the Law Enforcement Commission and the phantoms covered in the message of transmission by Mr. Hoover and the accompanying report from Secretary Mellon and Attorney General Mitchell embodied subjects that could best be handled in this way.

Before tonight Chairman Williamson of the Expenditures committee, is expected to introduce a resolution to authorize the transfer of the prohibition unit from the Treasury to the Justice Department.

Under Williamson's prospective measure, Commissioner Doran of the Prohibition Bureau would be retained in the Treasury Department as chief of a new bureau to handle industrial alcohol permits and narcotics.

At the Senate side of the Capitol the first consideration of the proposed changes is expected Monday when the Judiciary committee, to which the recommendations were referred, will meet. Chairman Norris of this committee so far has reserved comment on the recommendations.

Awail Borah Comment

Among those whose comment on the law enforcement reorganization report was awaited with interest today was Senator Borah of Idaho, one of Mr. Hoover's most ardent campaigners, and more recently a severe critic of existing enforcement agencies.

Of those discussing the report, Henry H. Curren, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said it was clear the commission had concluded after eight months of study that the "problem of prohibition is not one to be solved by tinkering with enforcement procedure" and that it was clear also that the commission "believes the law as it now stands is unenforceable."

At the headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League it was said the board of directors in session at Detroit had taken the report under consideration. Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, asserts that "we favor the recommendations of President Hoover as they come to us" and added he regarded the report as a "start" that might serve as an introduction for further statements.

Today, there appeared little disposition among "wets" as a whole to oppose the recommendations. A number of this group privately expressed the opinion that there would be no concentrated opposition.

Electric Car Hit

Truck: One Dead

Winnetka, Ill., Jan. 14.—(UP)—One man was killed and nine persons were injured slightly when a Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee electric train crashed into a truck here today.

Louis Fine, Chicago, fruit store owner, who was driving the truck, was killed.

The injured were passengers and members of the electric train crew. They suffered cuts and bruises.

FLIERS' BODIES FOUND IN RUINS OF THEIR PLANE

Altitude Attempt On Friday Ended In Their Death

Amston, Conn., Jan. 14.—(UP)—The lost Fairchild monoplane in which Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick set out on an altitude test from Farmingdale, Long Island, last Friday, was found wrecked here today.

The plane was discovered in the woods near Amston Lake by Fred Rowley, a gamekeeper.

The locality where the fog-blinded fliers died had been the graveyard of two airmen pilots within the last three years, Daniel Kline and Ned Carrington.

Search had been conducted in this heavily wooded and sparsely settled country since reports had been received of persons who heard the drone of the lost plane's motor. These were traced to Ashford, near here.

Rowley told the United Press the aviators apparently missed a safe dead-tick landing only narrowly.

The plane had struck the top of a tree and crashed into a field in which it might have landed without serious damage. What little gasoline remained in the tanks evidently exploded and set fire to the ship.

Rowley believed the men lived long enough to drag themselves from the flaming cabin.

A few yards away from the field the fliers might have landed safely in Amston Lake.

ILLINOIS NEGRO CADET AT WEST POINT DROPPED

One Of 64 Who Failed To Pass Test In Scholarship

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 14.—(UP)—Cadet Alonzo Parham of Chicago, the only Negro cadet in West Point, was among 64 cadets honorably discharged today from the Military Academy for deficiency in their studies.

Orders for the discharge of Parham and the others were issued by Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, Superintendent of the Academy, today.

Parham was appointed to West Point by Representative DePriest, Illinois' Negro member of Congress, last summer. At the same time, DePriest appointed a Negro Midshipman to Annapolis but the latter failed to pass his physical examination.

The appointments created wide comment and agitation at the time. DePriest was quoted as saying that regardless of whether the appointees remained in the Academies, he would continue to appoint men of his race.

DePriest will have two appointments to West Point and two to Annapolis to make in the summer. One appointment to each school will be his regular appointment and one to each to fill vacancies.

Keller Is Given Opinion By State

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 14.—(UP)—Juror fees are not chargeable as costs in hearings under the "lunatics, idiots, drunkards and spend-thrifts act," according to an opinion by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom, here today. The ruling was at the request of State's Attorney Mark C. Keller of Lee County.

In another opinion Carlstrom held that personal property is exempt in payment of fine and execution costs under certain restrictions. The opinion stated that "when a fine is inflicted the court may order as part of the judgment, that the offender be committed to jail, there to remain until the fine and costs are fully paid or he is discharged according to law." The opinion was asked by State's Attorney W. N. Albert, Vandalia.

He Tried To Change Shape Girl's Head

Chicago, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Alexander Blackman's efforts to change the shape of his 14-year-old daughter's head had brought him today to the Psychopathic Hospital for examination.

Mrs. Blackman told police that three months ago her husband fastened a heavy leather helmet with adjustable chin straps which he placed on the head of his daughter, Helen. The child offered no objection, but yesterday the shape of her head was unchanged, and her mother proposed that the experiment be discontinued.

When Blackman insisted that the helmet remain on Helen's head, Mrs. Blackman called police.

Judge Erickson ordered the father and mother to the Psychopathic Hospital and turned the child over to juvenile authorities.

NOT OPEN TO CENSURE OR CRITICISM

Sugar Lobby Belabor-ed In Report To Senate Today

Washington, Jan. 14.—(UP)—President Hoover's relations with those interested in the sugar tariff were free of "impropriety" or "anything open to censure or criticism" the Senate lobby investigating committee reported today.

The committee explained that "it is quite likely that representatives of both the contending forces waited on the President to incline him favorably to their views."

The committee estimated, roughly, that the committee estimated, roughly, that the lobby spent over $400,000, "the cost to those urging the raise being between $175,000 and $200,000, and the cost to those against the raise being between $200,000 and $225,000."

Little difference was found by the committee between the forces working on the two sides of the question. Both were well organized and highly financed, it said.

The tariff bill, the report said, "has brought into existence or into activity a lobby interested in the sugar schedule, perhaps more perfectly organized and liberally financed than any other concerned about any feature of that bill, or any other legislation before Congress."

To Arouse Antagonism

The committee found "a particularly reprehensible part of the program" carried on by Herbert C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Co., for a low tariff, was "an effort to stir up hostility to the United States in Latin-American countries upon the assumption that it, by its tariff policy, was mistreating Cuba."

The committee reported General Enoch H. Crowder, former Ambassador to Cuba, "labored in union" with Lakin and Edwin P. Shattuck, Lakin's attorney, for the low tariff. Crowder's employment apparently came through President Machado of Cuba, the report said.

The fact that Lakin and Shattuck were in almost constant communication with higher officials of the Cuban government left the impression, the committee said, "that the government had associated itself with them in their propaganda."

In regard to Lakin's employment of Shattuck the committee said:

"It is undeniable that those securing his services labored under the belief that he was an intimate friend of the President of the United States, with whom he came in contact while serving with the sugar equalization board at least Lakin, in a voluminous correspondence again and again asserted that he, Shattuck, sustained the closest relations to the President, had access to him at all times, and was in frequent consultation with him on the sugar tariff."

"The facts in this case were obtained under difficult circumstances," Caraway said. "If anyone with the possible exception of H. U. Eike, Jr., of the Hershey Corporation, told the truth, I do not know of it. Our witnesses were evasive even to the extent of denying known facts about themselves."

Borah Pleads For Sugar Producers

Washington, Jan. 14.—(UP)—The American sugar producer soon will be overwhelmed by imports from the Philippines unless measures are taken to protect him. Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations committee told the Senate today, arguing for a county for the American sugar farmer.

Borah said the only thing the Philippines lack is a market and the United States has opened its arms to them by giving free trade, an arrangement that cannot be abandoned easily.

"The Philippines are enjoying the largest market in the world," Borah said. "In my opinion under these circumstances, they were nearer independence 10 years ago than they are today. If they are not granted independence in the near future, these circumstances will amplify to such an extent that it will be practically impossible to consider the question of independence."

"Unsolicited I want to tell you that your goods have fixed me up in good shape. I have had so much experience with constipation and the attendant ills (and there are so many of them) that I am capable of knowing when I get real results. Two months ago I was only a third of a man. Today I can eat up the work as fast as they hand it to me. I owe it all to your Agar, Lacto-Dextrin and Paramels."

It was just plain old constipation—a clogged colon—nothing else. Mr. L. A. L. Kansas City, Mo. Order from your health food center.

Leaders of India's New Revolt

With India again in the throes of a "bloodless revolution" against British rule, dissension among native leaders has threatened to break the backbone of the revolt. The fiery speeches of Pandit Motilal Nehru, pictured upper left, president of the Indian National Congress, have alienated the support of Subas Chandra Bose, powerful Bengal chieftain, shown with him. Below is Gandhi, most powerful and famous of Indian rebel leaders, who drew up the "declaration of independence" which was adopted by the native congress.

FIGHTING ITS WATER RENTAL
Appeals From the Order
Granting Higher
Water Rights

Chicago, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Mayor H. E. Burkholder of Sterling, Frederick Dickinson, attorney for Sterling and Rock Falls, and officials of the Illinois Water Service Company, appeared before the Illinois Commerce Commission today for a reopening of the Sterling water rate case, which the city has appealed from the commission's order granting the company an increase in rates.

Effective last October 1, the commission granted an increase in rates amounting to 33 per cent in some classes but which the company contends equals a general increase of about 25 per cent. In allowing the increase, the commission instructed the company to construct a reservoir which was to have been built and placed into operation by Jan. 1, 1930. The reservoir has not been built, although its cost was included in figuring a basis for the increase in rates.

After the increase was granted, the city appealed and the appeal is still pending. Meanwhile the company withheld starting work on the reservoir. The city was prepared to demand that the company start work on the reservoir at once, regardless of the appeal.

The company contends it can not afford to build the reservoir if the increase in rates is not sustained, and contends that even with the increase it is not earning a fair return of 7 per cent on its investment.

R. C. Wirtz, assistant auditor for the Water Service Company, said that under the commission's valuation the Sterling property of the company was appraised at $685,000, including $45,000 for the new reservoir. Deducting the cost of the reservoir, to earn a return of 7 per cent of capital invested the company would have to earn about $45,000, Wirtz said, whereas the earnings for last year, based on the new increase in rates, was only $40,620.

Other witnesses called by the company were J. L. Harrop, vice president of the Public Works Engineering Corporation, a subsidiary of the Federal Water Service Corporation, which owns and operates the Illinois Water Service Company, and E. MacDonald, superintendent of the Sterling plant.

The city had no new witnesses. The purpose of the hearing principally was to allow the commission to obtain new evidence for use when the appeal is heard.

Where Theater Blast Injured 30

Heavy explosions which hurled blocks of concrete and massive steel beams high into the air injured more than 30 persons in Philadelphia and spread havoc amidst a rush hour throng in the vicinity of the historic City Hall. Here you see firemen—several of whom were hurt—fighting the blaze in the partially demolished Globe theater, where the blasts occurred supposedly after sparks had ignited gas tanks.

CITY MANAGER OF CLEVELAND
IS GIVEN "G. B."Climax Of Fight On Hopkins Reached
by Councilmen

Cleveland, O., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The turbulent course of Cleveland's City Manager system of government, instituted here first among the nation's larger cities, had reached its bitterest climax today with the summary removal of City Manager William R. Hopkins.

The city council by a vote of 14 to 11 last night ousted Hopkins from the position he had held for six years. He was suspended at once, with final removal ordered January 22. Before that date he will be given a public hearing. On January 27, former State Senator Daniel E. Morgan is scheduled to become the new City Manager.

Beyond this, however, lies the open enmity between Maurice Maschke, Republican county leader, and Hopkins. Hopkins is generally taken for granted, refused to follow the instructions of the party leaders in the matter of patronage at the city hall. Friends of the manager plan, which has been upheld in four municipal elections, charged that the ousting of Hopkins was the first move to make the chief governmental office a political one. Maschke has made no statement.

Hopkins' suspension was ordered without any charges being filed. This will be done by a committee of five of the ostensible leaders of the fight against him in the council. They called a meeting today and will report Thursday morning.

Taylor Case Just Where It Has Been

Los Angeles, Jan. 14.—(UP)—Otis Hefner, paroled convict quizzed in the William Desmond Taylor murder mystery, has been returned to his home in San Francisco. District Attorney Burton Pitts found Hefner's story to be of no assistance in solving the baffling eight-year old case.

Fitts now wants to interview Edward Sands, Taylor's valet, who has been missing since the murder.

"Until Sands is apprehended and either definitely connected with the murder, or eliminated, slight progress can be made in the investigation," Fitts said. "We will continue, however, to gather information."

Wife Can Recover Gifts Given Rival

Chicago, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The right of a wife to recover gifts her husband gave another woman is supported in a ruling by Superior Judge Williams.
The Judge yesterday gave Mrs. Christina Moraw, 60, permission to audit the accounts of her estranged husband, Charles A. Moraw, president of the Moraw Construction Co. The wife pleaded she had no estimate of the gifts her husband showered on Mrs. Bonny Pinkusohn, a divorcee, but believed they amounted to thousands of dollars.
Mrs. Moraw named the divorcee as co-respondent in a suit for divorce and in another bill demanded return of the gifts.

Got Hubby Job So She Can Collect

Chicago, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Tangredy is not evasive to helping her husband get a job if it will help him pay his alimony, she explained it to Judge Joseph Sabath. Whenever she would ask about her husband, Thomas, would reply that he was unable to get a job. Mrs. Tangredy then began looking over the advertisements and in no time at all had a number of situations for her husband. She showed Judge Sabath the letters yesterday. None of the jobs, she said, seemed to suit her husband.
The court told Mr. Tangredy to pay up his $546 back alimony by April 1 or go to jail.
"And it won't do any good," added the court, "to tell me you can't find a job."

Dixon Delegation Attending Seventh Conference Civic Music

The Evening Post of Chicago of Saturday, Jan. 11 printed the following interesting article apropos of the special opera given for the delegates to the seventh annual conference of the Civic Music organization. The article in part was:
"The were hundreds of them, all the boxes and 500 seats on the main floor, guests of the civic concert service, that remarkable institution of which Dema Harshbarger is the presiding genius. And genius she is, since while pretty much every other managerial bureau in the music world is emitting walls of despair, her organization is wreathed in smiles—if you will permit the locution.

These delegates are the people who pay the bills in the cities and towns round about and you would have expected that they would greet the offerings with the coldly appraising eye of the pocketbook, supposedly the coldest eye known.

Quite the contrary, they were about the most receptive and enthusiastic audience of the winter. There were "Ohs" and "Ahs" for every point and genuine poundings together of ungloved hands.

Perhaps, as good business men and women, and having been properly brought up by Miss Harshbarger, they realized that an audience, to get its money's worth, must do its share.

The more recognition they give the artist the greater power that depends on him and the more he can give in return. One hand helps the other, in a manner of speaking.

Enough of the general public took advantage of the bargain offering (as many artists as could be brought together on one program) so the house was sold out, which also helped. Interesting to note that of the four excerpts offered three were from Verdi's operas, with one act from "Romeo and Juliet." Mme. Hattie Stiles being disposed, Miss Hilda Burke sang Juliet and sang very well. Looked pretty and her voice was clear and true.

Giovanni Manuritta sang the duke in "Rigoletto" well. Otherwise the old favorites, the tried and true, Messdames Muzio, Van Gordon, Turner and Salvi, Messrs. Marshall, Hackett, Cortis, Formichi, Rimini, Inglieri, Lazzari and Baromeo, with Messrs. Foliano, Cooper and St. Leger conducting.

A good time was had by all.

Dixon Delegation

The Dixon delegation attending the seventh annual Conference of Civic Music Associations included the following, the officers of the Dixon Association being named:

Mrs. Willard Thompson—President.
Mrs. Frank Rosbrook—Vice president.
Mrs. M. L. Davies—Secretary.
Mrs. H. U. Bardwell—Publicity Chairman.
Mrs. A. S. Moore—Senior Membership Chairman.
Mrs. Lester Wilhelm—Junior Membership Chairman.
Lester Wilhelm—Treasurer.
Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Ives, Mrs. Eustace Shaw, Mrs. Warren Murray, Mrs. Irving Hofer, Mrs. Warren Burkes, Mrs. Harry Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Warner, Miss Anna Geisenheimer, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Alexander, Mrs. A. A. Phelps and Miss Phillips, Sterling.

Opening Session Conference

The Tribune had the following to say of the opening of the Civic Music conference:
Speaking of bear markets—well, the Palmer house near Wall Street look sick today. The deals were in artistic temperaments and old favorites came crashing down so fast that the "ticker tape" the reporter's notebook—went far behind it never could catch up.

"You might call this the pit," explained Dema E. Harshbarger, president and general manager of Civic Concert Service, Inc., at the opening of the seventh annual conference of Civic Music associations, "and these representatives of 157 cities, all the way from New York to Florida and west to Oklahoma, are the brokers who are here to find market values on musicians, lecturers, orchestras and other entertainers and to bid on the issues they prefer."

It was a free-for-all forum, in which halos of genius were discarded and the dollars-and-cents values of performers laid on the table.

"What about Mr. Blank, the famous violinist?" asked one delegate.
"He plays well, but his price is $3,500, and he takes what rates he pleases. If his manager feels like answering a request, all right; if not he ignores it. Take some one else, is my advice, and give him a rest," was one answer.

Another musician was heralded as good, but he was classed as too "erratic." Cellists, unsupported by other artists to give variety, were voted insufficient for an evening's entertainment. One famous player was classed as "just another piano player."

But not all the geniuses were panned. The odds seemed against the old standbys with prices ranging from $1,000 to $3,500 for an evening's performance, and in favor of the newer artists who are willing to exhibit their talents for $500 and up.

What Paris is Wearing

PARIS—There are whole lessons in geometry to be learned from the Paris shop windows these days. The rue de la Paix, lined with cases of diamonds and emeralds, bearing the names of some of the world's most fashionable designers, is a jeweled version of a mathematics book—with its squares and rectangles and rhomboids worked together in rings and bracelets. The new Paris way of cutting gems, even diamonds as big as lumps of sugar, is to make them all flat planes, with as few angles as possible.
The fine color, and the radiating brilliance shows up in this fashionable way of cutting diamonds, jewelers say. For example, there is an important style point in wearing a huge square-cut flat-surface diamond ring, like the one pictured, with bracelets that are cut and set in arrangements that emphasize their sparkle.

The bracelets themselves are of the two smart types worn in Paris nowadays. One is of platinum links, diamond-paved. The other is slender and narrow, with rubies set among the diamonds. The second ring uses diamonds only as a background to the center stone, a large sapphire that shows a starry light.—K. D'ORSAY

Perhaps the greatest enthusiasm was for Echaniz, pianist.
"The critic in my town ripped into Echaniz playing as being faulty, but he surely went over with the audience," commented one delegate.

"The next day I heard all the Klansmen raving about his playing as being wonderful."

Harold Samuels, husband of Gallie Curci, was rated as one of the favorites in his own right.
Artists at Luncheon
The Chicago Herald and Examiner of Sunday had the following to say of the luncheon given at the annual conference of the Civic Music Association:

A priceless array of temperament and talent sparked at the speaker's table yesterday at the seventh annual luncheon of the Civic Music Association, the Palmer House where the darlings of the Civic Opera Company became acquainted with the association's 800 delegates.

As Demo E. Harshbarger, president of the national organization, introduced each of the several hundred song birds there were rounds of applause and murmurs of delight. But when she came to the genuinely-beloved, silver-haired Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink and the vibrant, adored Mary Garden they almost tore down the ceiling of the grand ballroom. For each it was a super triumph.

Mary "Dee-Lighted"

Said Mary, when she could get a word in: "I'm dee-lighted. I think you're grand and you make me think I'm wonderful. You seem to prove what I've always contended that if you've got something here (indicating her heart) and here (pointing to her pearl-bound throat) the public will discover it for themselves."
"No critic has ever said I could sing but I don't give a damn as long as my audiences do."

Madame Schumann-Heink, who travelled more than 3,000 miles to be present, warmly seconded Mary Garden's enconiums on this country's vocal teachers and musical colleges. America, she said, can match Europe any day for vocal-training honors.

Lauds Insull

Samuel Insull, the luncheon's chief speaker, and Chicago's grand mogul of opera, was also on the receiving end of Mme. Schumann-Heink's laudatory comments. Chicago might be Chicago geographically, she said, but Chicago would never be Chicago musically without Samuel Insull.

Mr. Insull, who spoke most enthusiastically of Miss Harshbarger's and the Civic Music Association's efforts in developing musical appreciation in this country, urged upon them the worth of establishing student's foundation in each of the 157 cities they represent as an infallible means of aiding youthful music students.

Other honor guests were Charles

Asks Consideration Solely on Ability

Paris, Ill., Jan. 14.—(UP)—Stressing her opposition to America's entry into the League of Nations and urging her hearers to disregard her sex and consider her on her ability, Congressman-at-Large Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick opened the second lap of her campaign for United States Senator here today. Mrs. McCormick spoke here this morning. This afternoon she will address an audience at Marshall and tonight will speak at Robinson.

"I hope nobody here will vote for me because I am a woman," she said, but in case any of her audience insisted on harboring prejudices toward her because of her femininity Mrs. McCormick hastened to add that there are eight women participating in the work of the lower House of Congress.

She also attacked the theory that women are ineligible for election to the Senate because they lack experience in statecraft by calling attention to the fact that only 20 of the present members of the United States Senate had experience in the House of Representatives before becoming Senators.

"As a Congressman-at-Large, representing more than seven millions of people in Illinois, my constituency is now identical with that of a United States Senator from Illinois," she said.

"Whether or not I win the senatorial nomination next April, I shall remain in the House until the end of my elective term, March 1931," she said.

SINKING THE BATTLESHIP.

The battleship is apparently just about ready to embark on its final cruise. A queer combination of idealism, changing strategy, economy and plain common sense seems to be on the verge of scuttling the so-called "capital ship" forever; and no one need mourn very greatly over the loss.

Taking one thing with another, the battleship has been the object of about as much inventive genius and scientific study as any other institution in all history.

More money has been spent to perfect it than has been spent in the war on cancer. Some of the best minds the world has produced have been devoted to solving the battleship's problems. Great laboratories, as expensive as anything the Rockefeller Foundation ever built, have been established for it.

And yet, all in all, the battleship has advanced human happiness very little. It has been a weapon for destruction. From start to finish it has been a necessary evil; and now that we are learning that it is not quite as necessary as we had supposed, we can give it up without a tear.

But no friend of peace has any reason to relax and think that the abolition of battleships, speedy or gradual, is going to bring naval warfare to an end. It will save everybody a lot of money—a modern battleship costs around $35,000,000 and the United States fleet has 18 of them at this writing—but it will still be easy for any nation to go sailing gaily into war with submarines and cruisers.

The battleship, to be sure, can hit harder than anything else afloat. But an eight-inch shell can do a goodish bit of damage, and a cruiser that can fling ten of them at a time can break a lot of crockery in the course of an hour's engagement. And you might remember that the most horrible aspect of the sea fighting in the last war was caused, not by battleships, but by submarines.

If battleships are eliminated it will not be because the rulers of the world have had a great change of heart. It will simply mean that they have decided that the battleship has grown too expensive to be put up with any longer—and, also, that naval strategists have decided that fleets can fight just about as well without battleships.

The danger of competitive armament races will remain just as strong as ever. If the United States and England, for instance, continue to scan one another's building programs anxiously, and lay down new cruisers frantically in order to keep from being outbuilt, we shall have another race identical with the German-English race that led up to 1914, even if the ships involved are lighter and less costly.

It will be good to see the battleship go; but we needn't kid ourselves that its abolition, if and when it comes, is any very great step forward.

PERSHING'S WISE DECISION.

General Pershing, refusing to be "drafted" as a Republican senatorial candidate in Nebraska to oppose Senator Norris, shows once more his excellent sense.

In 1920 Pershing sensibly refused to run for the presidency. It was a wise decision. His present decision is no less wise.

The motive back of the frantic attempts that are being made to get Norris out of public life don't reflect a great deal of credit on anyone. Agree with Norris or not, you must admit that he bears the reputation of being one of the ablest men in American Senate; and his personal reputation is of the highest order. Furthermore, the voters of Nebraska seem eminently satisfied with him.

We are glad General Pershing refused to run against him. For one thing, the general very likely would have been defeated.

The snow kept whizzing through the air and wind was zipping everywhere. "Oh, my," exclaimed wee Clowney. "I can hardly stand up straight. My eyes are cold and near in tears and snow is blowing in my ears. I don't know why I ever thought that big snow storms were great."

"Well, let's not stand here," Scouty snapped. "Or in this blizzard we'll be trapped. I wish that we could find a cave in which to hide a while." Another Tiny promptly said, "The snow will soon be over my head. I do not want to swim in it." This made the others smile. "Imagine swimming in the snow," said Carpy. "Why, you ought to know that water's what you swim in. Come, let's hide behind a tree. That plan will be to some avail if we can step out of the gale. Most any place at all, I'm sure, is good enough for me."

They ran to several trees nearby, and then the whole bunch heaved a sigh. The trees were far from big enough to do the bunch much good. Then Coppy said, "I have a plan. If you'll all help I'm sure we can erect a house. We'll make it out of snow. We have no wood."

"A good idea! You are no dunces!" said Scouty. "We'll begin at once. Now everyone start rolling monstrous snow balls cross the ground. We'll pack them all together and, 'twill shortly make a snow house grand. Be sure that they are nice and big and also good and round."

And so the bunch all went to work. It was too cold to stop and shirk. Big snowballs were produced and rolled together, one by one. The house was made in record time, and Clowney said, "Come on, we'll climb inside the thing and all sit down. 'Twill be a heap of fun."

SCANDINAVIAN UNION

On Jan. 14, 1814, Norway and Sweden united.

This union was formed on the understanding that they should retain full liberty and independence within their own boundaries. Subsequent relations between Norway and Sweden up to 1885 were marked by no violent conflicts.

Soon after 1885, however, there arose a movement in Norway aimed at transforming the bond between the two states into a mere personal union.

The anti-union movement died down for a time due to fear of Russia, but events of the Russo-Japanese war were regarded as removing all danger from Russia and the radical tendency once more made itself manifest.

On July 28, 1905, the Norwegian people voted for separation from Sweden by a vote of 368,200 against 184.

The Norwegian Diet and the Swedish Riksdag approved an agreement for dissolution of the union on Oct. 16, 1905.

Two More Victories Over Stubborn Stomach Trouble—Joyous News For Other Sufferers

SO HAPPY MUST TELL WHAT TANLAC DID FOR HER

FINALLY FINDS RIGHT THING IN TANLAC
 First Bottle Proof Enough

FROM old and young they come, letters overflowing with words of praise and gratitude telling of wonderful, almost unbelievable relief received from this matchless medicine. Local people, many of whom you know, are highly endorsing Tanlac. Take for instance, Mrs. Mary Bond who writes: "The moment food entered my stomach I would have such terrible pains that I could hardly move. Although I had doctored and taken all kinds of medicines I had never been able to find anything to help me until a boarder recommended Tanlac. I have now taken five bottles and am delighted with the way it has helped me. You can imagine how good I felt when I ate a nice big steak and didn't have a bit of trouble after having lived on dried toast for almost a year."

THOSE who have found only disappointment and failure in their search for health will do well to profit by the experience of this well-known man, Mr. Patrick O. Keefe. "For a number of years," says Mr. Keefe, "I suffered from stomach troubles. I could hardly eat anything without suffering gas and terrible bloating and I was always constipated. I heard about the benefits others derived from Tanlac, I admit I was skeptical for I had tried so many different medicines without results. Finally I was persuaded to try Tanlac and I will say the first bottle was proof enough for me. I have now taken several bottles and a wonderful change has come over me. My bowels are regular, digestive organs have been toned up, and I can eat three meals without gas, bloating or any misery." Tanlac is not only a wonderful stomach medicine but a great tonic.

HOW I CAME TO ESCHREW TOBACCO

To the editors and readers of The Evening Telegraph:

When I was a boy some four score years ago it was generally customary for robust men to smoke the pipe and chew tobacco. The man who did neither was looked upon as a sort of pious weakling. If there is anything boys like to do it is to do like the big men in the neighborhood.

One day, in the old brick schoolhouse in Pennsylvania, the boys got hold of a plug of tobacco, about the size of a cake of full-milk chocolate. The plug was passed from seat to seat, each boy bit off a good sized chunk, and began to chew, and spit like the big man. Recess soon followed, and while playing ball with the boys, I accidentally swallowed my cud. Soon I became so sick, that I had to ask the teacher to excuse me, and let me go home. When I got there, I was as white as a sheet and as sick as a dog.

My mother was afraid that I would die. When she found out the cause she said, "You better let that stuff alone." My upheaving stomach advised me to take her advice, and I have never tasted the weed again to this day.

I am not sorry for it, for I have been better off without it.

The English novelist Charles Dickens, in the story of his first visit to America, describes the tobacco-chewing customs in our country, and more particularly in the western states. It was not only amusing but disgusting to see men shooting their tobacco spit at the spittoon and miss it, and to squirt the tobacco juice upon a red-hot stove, filling the room with a nicotine odor that was suffocating. He may have exaggerated the situation in his first visit. When he came the second time, to make his lecture tour through this country, coming money by the thousands, he could not say nice-enough things about the civilization and culture of the United States.

How I Came to Quit Smoking

Smoking was considered more decent. So naturally the boys wanted to do like the gentlemen. One day my neighbor chum said to me: "Let us go to the county seat, Lock Haven, Pa., tomorrow, and see the sights. I will find the horse and you find the sleigh." It was a bargain. We went into the stores and public buildings. Looking into a window along the street we saw a man making cigars. My chum says: "Let us go in and buy a few." We did so, and lighted our cigars, puffing the smoke through mouth and nose, like the big men on the street.

Then we got into our sleigh and started for home.

We had not gone a quarter of a mile, when I said: "Ed, stop the horse, I must get out!" I decorated the snow bank on the side of the road, and threw away my cigar. We did not go much farther till my chum went through the same performance, and threw away his cigar. That was the first and last attempt on my part to smoke a gentleman's cigar.

My father smoked occasionally but he assured me that he only did it to ease up the tooth-ache. He had the tooth-ache only a few times a week.

When I learned that General Grant died from a cancer in the throat, brought on by excessive smoking, and that McKinley could have survived the assassin's bullet if it had not been that his heart was weakened by nicotine poisoning, I felt like thanking my stomach for repelling against the popular weed. The father of the exiled kaiser "unser Fritz," died of cancer in the throat, caused by excessive smoking. In my opinion the Germans are more generally addicted to the pipe and the cigar than the Americans.

Every other car in the railway train is a "raucher" and in Berlin the smoking cars on the elevated and subway trains are all painted red and the "nicht-rauchers," (no smoking) are all painted yellow, so the passengers need not make a mistake. In the restaurants men and women smoke until the air is almost suffocating. The enormous sums of money spent for cigars and cigarettes could be put to better use. A few German statesmen are arriving to that conclusion.

Thomas Franklin Dornblaser.

Poison Plotter To Be Sentenced

Newkirk, Okla., Jan. 13—(UP)—A winning personality won scores of friends for Francis C. Hyde, young Ponca City attorney, but one who had befriended him in many an emergency held aloof today.

Samuel C. Collins, wealthy oil operator and former vice president of the Marland Oil Company, refused to solace the man he had befriended since youth and made his confidential secretary.

Hyde, by decision of a district court jury, stands convicted of an attempt to poison his benefactor. He was charged with handing Collins a glass of soda pop containing a mixture of potassium cyanide.

The state charged the attempt to poison Collins was made to cover up a fraudulent transfer from Collins to Hyde of 500 shares of oil stock and $7,000 in bank drafts by forgery.

Tomorrow Hyde will be brought before District Judge W. W. Price to be sentenced. The jury recommended a 15-year term in the state penitentiary.

THE SPIRIT OF YOUTH
 carry on—Avoid that future shadow

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW***

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

SEEMS DOOMEDYankee's President Tells Why Limit Is Reached(Copyright 1930, By United Press)
New York, Jan. 14 (UP)—Discussing the Babe Ruth salary dispute today, Colonel Jacob Ruppert owner of the New York Yankees made these pungent and interesting statements:"On the present basis of possible financial returns in baseball, the salary limit for a player was reached with Ruth's old contract, which called for $70,000 a year. In offering $75,000, for two seasons, I have gone beyond the limit."Stories about the tremendous profits of the New York club are figments of the imagination. In ten years Ruth has made more out of the Yankees than I have."In refusing a three year contract to Ruth, I seek to protect the player himself, as well as my investment and the rights of all the other Yankees."Ruth is fortunate that the ownership of the Yankees is not spread among a lot of stockholders. If it were they never would stand for offering him $150,000 for two years. The book value of Ruth could not possibly justify it."I am not insensible to what he has done for the club and the game though I do feel he gives himself too much credit for the pennant victories of the Yankees."When Ruth informed me the other day that he would get a three year contract at $85,000 a season or quit, I reminded him that publicity in the sport pages had been a big factor in making possible his $70,000 salary."I said: 'quit the diamond and where will you be? In a few days you will slide out of print. Nobody gets more newspaper attention than the President of the United States.
How many columns a week do you read about Calvin Coolidge, now that he has retired to private life?'"I told Ruth how much I appreciated what he had done for the Yankees, but I also pointed out how much he had cost me in the first place—and that he had taken exactly $520,000 salary out of the Yankee treasury, and picked up a small fortune in world series prizes and other things."We paid Ruth when he was out for weeks under suspension by Landis. That wasn't our fault. We have gone along with him—and he's got to go along with us."For Fire Insurance see Hal Bard-

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP)—Purdue and Illinois today shared the leadership in the Western Conference basketball championship race, while Michigan, co-holder of the 1929 title, was another notch farther down the list.Purdue won its second straight conference game last night at the expense of the hitherto undefeated Northwestern team, 39 to 22, while Michigan suffered a second staggering blow in three nights when Illinois invaded Ann Arbor for a 24 to 18 triumph over the Wolverines. The victory was Illinois' second in a row.The "high-low" combination of towering "Stretch" Murphy and stubby Johnny Wooden, that led Purdue to victory over Michigan
Saturday night, wrecked Northwestern last night. Murphy batted in four field goals and dropped in four free throws, while Wooden drilled through the Wildcat defense for six baskets and a free throw.Illinois' loafing offense and powerful defense was more than Michigan could figure out. The Wolverines were held to four field goals, two each by Truskowski and Chapman, while the Illini sneaked through for nine. Ernie Kamp scored three from the field for Illinois, while Harper and Captain Doug Mills who played his first game of the season, accounted for two each. The count was 11 all at the half, and Michigan tied it up at 15-15 early in the second period before sagging.Two games remain on the week's schedule. Illinois will place its undefeated slate on the block by invading Wisconsin Saturday night, while Northwestern will go to Indiana the same night. The Badgers came to life Saturday night and defeated Ohio State 32 to 25, as compared to Illinois' 19 to 15 victory over the Buckeyes in the opening game of the season. Northwestern has victories over Wisconsin and Minnesota and its defeat by Purdue, while Indiana won its only start, defeating Chicago, 36 to 24, Saturday night.

Grub Is SoundedUrbana, Ill., Jan. 14 (UP)— Warning against the ravages of the "white grub", notorious corn borer, was sounded by W. P. Flint, chief entomologist of the Illinois State Natural History Survey, in an address before the thirty-third annual Farm and Home week of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois here today.This insect, better known as the "June Beetle," according to Flint, threatens to do far more damage in the northern two thirds of the state than the dread European corn borer will cause at any time during the past five years."The past year was 'June Beetle' year, that is, it was the year in which the white grub completed its three years, growth and was abroad during the spring and early summer in the form of a droning June beetle," said Flint. These beetles were more abundant during May and June of the past year than they have been any year during the past nine."Having finished their flight, they are now back in the ground where another cycle in the life of the insect has been started. Examinations made last fall in a number of counties north of a line drawn east and west through the northern edge of Greene, Macoupin and Clark counties have shown that in sod land in the vicinity of the woodlands one will find from 20 to as high as 100 white grubs to the square yard. An infestation of 10 grubs to the square yard means a very serious damage to corn planted on such ground. An infestation of 50 or more grubs to the square yard will mean complete destruction of a corn field where the corn is planted on land infested to this extent."To be on the safe side, farmers who are intending to put corn on mixed clover and timothy sod, bluegrass sod or timothy sod which is within a half mile of woodlands containing oaks, hickories, walnuts, peppers or willows should carefully examine such ground in the spring for the presence of grubs. If there are as many as five grubs to the square yard, it will be better to put a small grain crop or soy beans on the ground."Any ground that is suspected of being infested by white grubs and has not been plowed should be plowed as late as possible next spring. Ground that is infested and has been plowed should be planted as late as possible and given as many diskings as practical before planting starting the disks about the middle of April to the first of May.Hal Hardwell wants to talk Fire

EXPECT WRIGHT TO DECIDE SOON ON SENATORSHIP

Friends Continue To Urge Him To Seek Return To Post

DeKalb Chronicle—It is with considerable disappointment that the people of this city and vicinity will learn that Senator H. G. Wright is announcing today that he will not be able to go ahead with his candidacy for the position of state treasurer.

Despite the game senator's decision, following his recent operation, that he was going to go ahead with his battle and despite the rosy prospects for success that were becoming more and more evident with every mail and every day of conference and visits, it has been decided within the past few days that the senator's physical condition is such that the hardships and exposure of a statewide campaign would jeopardize seriously his life and health.

The candidate had for several days past been in almost constant consultation with a number of the leading medical and surgical advisors of the middle west and his physical condition has been gone into most exhaustively by them.

After days of consultation and work on his case it was decided at a meeting several days ago that the physicians would not be responsible for the outcome, should Senator Wright decide to continue on the hard battle in which he had started.

Takes Sensible Stand With characteristic good sense and sound judgment the senator finally decided that discretion would be the better thing for him to exercise in the present emergency and he reluctantly announces today that he will not become a candidate for state treasurer at this time.

While feeling the disappointment about as keenly as the candidate himself, his friends and advisors in this city and county have agreed with him that this is the wisest thing to do but they are insistent that he may start now his preliminary work for the campaign of 1932.

Already, too, a movement has been started to insist that he become a candidate for the place in the senate which he has filled for the past years although no decision on this point has been made by Dr. Wright.

A local politician expressed the situation well today when he said that it seemed too bad that the present situation had to arise as Senator Wright was sure to be nominated and elected if he had been able to go through with his fight.

Has Statewide Popularity He is very popular in every county in the state and his management of several state campaigns in the past few years has given him wide acquaintance as is enjoyed by any figure of statewide prominence.

From all over this district come the word of friends urging him to seek nomination to his senate post. These friends declare that it would be too bad for this district to lose his leadership in the state senate and that it would be poor politics to dispense with his valuable services if they were available.

He has won a place as an outstanding member of the state senate and is chairman of the most important committee, that on appropriations. Last session he reduced requests for appropriations that came before his committee approximately $120,000,000, and he is known about the capital as the "watch dog of the treasury."

Senator Wright will probably make known his decision about the senatorial place in the course of the next few days.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE MEET SET IN DETROIT

Object is Closer Alliance Between Churches and Organization

By J. R. CONNOR, Jr.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Detroit, Jan. 14—(UP)—Marking the tenth anniversary of the Eighteenth Amendment, the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America will open here tomorrow with a program intended to cement closer the alliance between churches and the dry organization.

Included in the speakers on the convention program are Bishop Thomas Nicholson of Detroit; Justice Florence E. Allen of the Ohio Supreme Court; United States Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas; Dr. A. J. Barton, Atlanta; Col. Frank B. Ebert, Los Angeles; Dr. J. M. Doran, United States Prohibition Commissioner, Washington; Ella A. Boole, president of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union; Edgar A. Guest, Detroit poet; Dr. Ernest Cherrington, director of the League's Educational Department; and General Secretary of the World Movement Against Prohibition ("Pussyfoot") Johnson. On Sunday afternoon, the final session of the convention, Dr. Howard H. Russell, founder of the League will be one of the speakers.

Opening the convention tomorrow night, Charles Bowles, newly elected mayor of Detroit, Rev. Roland N. Holsapple, state superintendent of the League, and H. C. Gleiss, representing to Detroit Council of Churches will welcome the delegates.

"Forward March is the keynote that will be sounded at the convention," Rev. Holsapple said today. "The fight against the liquor interests is not yet won. Despite the fact that the liquor beverage traffic is outlawed, its friends were never so well organized, never so well financed, never so skillfully directed as they are today."

"The anti-Saloon League is in a peculiar way, not merely an agency of the Church, but by the official action of many denominations, it is the actual representative of those churches in the fight against the liquor interests of the nation," Rev. Holsapple declared in explaining plans for more cohesion between churches and the League. "The liquor problem is not parochial. It is denominational. It is a great social and moral question, affecting all churches, all communities, all classes. A question of this character can be solved not by individual action nor by local, denominational or other group action, but only by concerted action."

WALKING WITH NO PAIN AFTER MONTH'S AGONY

Feet, Ankles Terribly Swollen, Painful to Even Touch, Before Taking Amazing Gly-Cas.

"I'm telling honest facts about what this wonderful Gly-Cas has done for me, after months of terrible rheumatism sufferings, and if anyone doubts them they can call me and I'll personally verify this statement." Mrs. Katherine Schneider, 308 Purdy St., Mansfield, Ohio, recently said in revealing another striking example of the efficacy of this amazing herbal remedy which continues to hold untiring interest throughout this entire section.

"Every day, for months I'd suffered terribly from rheumatism," she continues. "My arms and hands were so sore and stiff I couldn't lift anything—to pick up a milk bottle was even too much for me—and my feet and ankles were swollen and the ankle joints too painful to touch. We tried different remedies and resorted to rubbing treatments and with it all, nothing seemed to reach my case and then Gly-Cas was introduced in Mansfield and oh, but I'm glad we got this wonderful medicine! The awful swelling has left my feet and ankles now, the terrible soreness and stiffness has been worked out of my hands and arms and I can truthfully say that I simply hardly feel any effects whatever from the former terrible rheumatism. I get out and walk to town nowadays and before, if I just sat down it was all I could do to even get up again. As I said, these are honest facts about my case and I am ready to personally verify them for I'm surely grateful for the relief this wonderful Gly-Cas has given me."

Gly-Cas is sold in Dixon at the Campbell White Cross Pharmacy. Sold Franklin Grove, G. S. Ives; Polo, C. R. Clothier; Ashton, G. R. Charters; Amboy, Aschenbrenner; Drug, Compton, W. H. Hills; Rochelle, Barker & Sullivan and by leading druggists in all surrounding towns.—Adv.

today for Europe to consult nerve specialists.

SPARE MEN BLUSHES

Los Angeles—It's too late for other stores to copy this hunch—it's after Christmas—but it'll keep until next Christmas. A department store in Epland increased its trade considerably by saving its male customers a lot of bushes during the holiday shopping season. Between the hours of 7 a.m. and 9 each night, women were barred from the store, male clerks were hired, and men bought feminine doodads without embarrassment.

The total extent of air-absorbing surface presented by the air cells of the lungs is about 2500 square feet.

BLDG. MATERIAL FROM STALKS IS NEWEST WRINKLE

New Process Is Evolved To Make Lumber From Stalks

Industrial scientists of the middle west who for more than two decades have been prospecting for economical utilization of farm wastes, particularly cornstalks, announced yesterday that they believed they had at last struck "pay dirt."

The announcement included the names of prominent farm leaders and Chicago business men who have advanced a half million dollars to develop processes of converting cornstalks into cheap yet exceptionally high quality thin lumber substitutes. Other byproducts of corn, the result of experiments in synthetic production at Iowa State college, may be added to the list of lumber materials later.

Take Over Dubuque Plant
This new corporation, capitalized at $1,000,000 is known as the National Cornstalks Processes, Inc., and will maintain headquarters in Chicago. Its plans announced yesterday provide eventually for a chain of cornstalk mills scattered throughout the corn belt, which are expected to provide a market for the farmer's cornstalks at $3 a ton or more.

The physical properties of the Maizewood Products corporation at Dubuque have been taken over, and farmers in eastern Iowa and western Illinois are already being paid on the basis of $10 per ton, baled and delivered in Dubuque. Patents, owned by the state of Iowa, on processes of converting cornstalks have been leased for a period of five years.

The commercial development of farm wastes which has culminated in this enterprise was first started under the direction of James (Tama Jim) Wilson, secretary of agriculture in 1900. It has been centralized in the Iowa State college since that time, so far as the corn belt products were concerned.

While Dr. O. R. Sweeney has developed the processes through some fifteen years of research, greater momentum was given his work at Ames, Ia., some five years ago, when the state erected a modern testing plant, costing about $150,000, on the college campus.

Hoover Aids Movement
Since then the Federal bureau of standards has lent assistance with men and funds appropriated at the insistence of President Hoover while he was secretary of commerce.

Some fifteen or twenty industrial byproducts have been successfully produced synthetically under Dr. Sweeney's direction. His preliminary results were described in The Tribune of July 26, 1928. Not until this week, however, have the Iowa authorities seen fit to lease their valuable patents.

"We regard this development of farm wastes into profitable uses one of the outstanding achievements in Iowa research," said George P. Baker of Davenport, president of the Iowa state board of education, yesterday. "It is the first big result of Iowa's foresight in erecting an agricultural chemistry laboratory, and we want all the farmers of the middle west to benefit."

Cheaper Than Growing Trees
President Raymond E. Hughes of the state college told The Tribune that this practical utilization of cornstalks was the most important research on the campus at the present time, and that Dr. Sweeney was regarded as the most able man in the field in developing synthetic products from farm wastes.

"We have proved that certain building materials can be produced more cheaply and of better quality synthetically than in producing trees over many years," said Dr. Sweeney in describing the significance of his experiments.

There are about 150,000,000 tons of cornstalks produced annually in the United States, Dr. Sweeney says. Not only can this enormous natural resource become cash when the farmer ordinarily requires financing to hold his corn crop for better prices in the fall and winter, but it furnishes an outlet for his labor in collecting and baling the stalks during otherwise slack times.

Predict Increased Consumption
There is potential annual consumption for 11 billion square feet of insulating or wallboard such as the new process will produce, he said. Chicago bankers indicated yesterday that their research shows that this new product might mean increased use of all insulating materials whether made from gypsum, wood, or other raw materials. Particularly, they say, it means increased revenue to the grain farmer of the middle west.

Engineers of several firms have reported investigations showing lighter weight, more tensile strength and resistance to warping, with economical production, for the thin boards turned out in the laboratory at Ames and the industrial plant at Dubuque. Not until the product has been tested in practical conditions of manufacture and use had the financing plan announced yesterday been consummated.

Economical methods of gathering stalks from the cornfield have also been developed, but considerable study is still necessary, it was said. The farm equipment manufacturers and agricultural engineers at state experiment stations are working on this problem. Prof. J. B. Davidson and Mr. Collins at Ames have produced a cutter and picker from present farm tools that serves fairly well.

Of all the afflictions to which the human body may fall heir, that of varicose veins may often be numbered among the most severe. This is not due to the presence of the varicose veins in themselves but to the fact that they may totally and permanently cripple those affected. Normally the blood is carried from the heart through the body by the arteries and then returned to the heart and lungs by way of the veins. Thus normally all the blood in the veins is flowing toward the heart and

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Institute are at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

If large varicose veins are injured in any way, they readily break down into open ulcers or sores which often take months or years to heal. In addition to the ulcers the legs may become badly swollen and unsightly and be very painful, or may develop extensive eczemas over the parts involved.

All these conditions can be cured, if cared for in time, by the drying up or obliteration of the varicose veins and appropriate local treatment.

In the injection or the obliteration treatment any one of several harmless solutions are injected into the varicose veins. These solutions cause an injury to the wall of the vessel which later causes the blood in that particular segment to be absorbed. By the healing process of nature following this injury to the lining of the vein it becomes obliterated and only a thin band of scar tissue remains under the skin where formerly there was a large vein filled with stagnant blood.

The permanency of the results following the injection treatment will depend entirely on the thoroughness of the work. If it has been thorough and complete the case will be cured for all time as to those veins present at the time of the treatment.

The fact that all the varicose veins present have been obliterated does not insure the patient that they will never develop varicose veins any more than a visit to a dentist will insure against further tooth decay. But the tendency to develop new varicose veins will be noted in the annual health audit, and can easily be cared for if it occurs.

FARM BOARD'S POWERS AREN'T ALL INVOKED

Large Part of Authority
Remains Unused
Speaker Says

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A large part of the powers conferred upon the federal farm board still remains unused, although foundations for an enlarged scope of activities have been laid with remarkable energy, Dr. Charles L. Stewart, chief in agricultural economics, said before the thirty-third annual Farm and Home Week of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

If those powers still held in reserve are used with as much discretion as has been observed in the general policy of the board to date, and if the plane of partisanship is consistently avoided, there can be little doubt of the board's pre-eminent value to the state and nation, Dr. Stewart declared.

Commodity advisory committees would seem to be needed more and more as the economic activities of the national sales agencies and regional cooperatives follow what may be called the preliminary legal stage. With the board distributing its attention to the problems of many farm commodities, there may be a tendency for each member with a farm commodity experience of his own to be forced to take a high degree of responsibility because of the preoccupation of other members with their own more familiar fields.

Advisory committees of persons informed by experience concerning the production and marketing of farm products could, if set up as the law provides, help to assure best results during the period of more detailed policies now arriving.

"Other reserve powers of the farm board include the allotment of funds for establishment of the Bledsoe price insurance plan, the promotion of clearing house associations and preferably as an emergency measure the establishment of commodity stabilization corporations."

The powers used thus far, Dr. Stewart explained, seem to foreshadow world-wide operations by farmer-owned and farmer-controlled marketing facilities. One feature of this development is the expansion of federal service abroad by which information as to foreign farm products and foreign markets for American farm products should be improved. The creation of regional and national sales agencies for the various products of American farms is another feature of the plan made especially clear in 1929.

"How successful will be these national efforts in what might be called international price diplomacy must be left to the historian of tomorrow rather than the prophet of today. Certain it is, however, that few such ambitious marketing ventures have ever been undertaken. The bond of sympathy between the federal farm board and the Canadian wheat pool efforts may presage a more complete unity of procedure in the case of all exported wheat whether grown in North America or in other parts of the world."

"If concerted plans for marketing exportable surpluses of farm products open the way for concerted policies for controlling the size of surpluses, the way may be blazed to upward influence on world prices. To expect this result to come quickly may be hazardous and without increase of the board's power by further legislation it is all too optimistic to expect an increase in the long-time average United States price of any of our exportable farm products without such a far-reaching look toward control of world supplies."

"Apart from price influence, however, massed selling by farmers is a desirable counterpart of the massed buying on the part of users of farm products. For a lag to occur on the selling side might result in serious handicap to agriculture."

Weekly Review of Agriculture by Farmers Paper

Chicago, (AP)—Cattle prices are showing some degree of stability as the average December price of native beef steers at Chicago was practically the same as in November, the Prairie Farmer's market review.

In 10 of the preceding 11 years, December prices lost ground compared with November, the decline in 1928 being 90 cents. Average prices for steers at the start of 1930 were practically the same as a year earlier. Other classes also have shown a skewness trend in the last seven or eight weeks. Number of cattle on feed were about the same as a year ago.

D. H. S. Chapter

BY LLOYD BREISCH
Dixon Chapter, Future Farmers
Of America

During the last year a national organization of agriculture, (high school departments), has been organized in the United States. There has been a national organization and a state organization formed. Each department has its local organizations. The Dixon High School agriculture department consists of 40 members with the following officers:

President—Robert Sheaffer.
Vice Pres.—Arthur Schick.
Sec. Treas.—Merritt Bellows.
Program Chairman—Edward Lawton.
Reporter—Lloyd Breisch.

This local organization holds its monthly meetings the second Tuesday of each month. Each meeting is devoted to some farm topic which is thoroughly discussed by the entire membership. These meetings are always well attended and prove educational as well as interesting to the membership.

The organization is one composed entirely of farm boys studying vocational agriculture. There are annual meetings of Future Farmers of the state organization each year. A great deal of interest has been manifested in the organization and in these meetings.

There are four degrees to be obtained in this organization, namely, the green hand degree; future farmer degree; state farmer degree and American Farmer degree. The latter is the highest honor to be obtained in the organization. The member organization has had but one member, Elmer Williams, now a student at the University of Illinois who has been successful in attaining the American Farmer degree. This coveted honor was awarded him at the national meeting of Future Farmers in November at Kansas City, Mo.

Interest shown in the activity of the Dixon chapter is centered in the judging teams, monthly meetings, Future Farmer basketball teams and many other interesting activities and projects.

The last 10 days and prospects of a liberal run in January caused hog prices to settle back about 50 cents, but a good deal of the loss have been recovered already after the receipts became light once more. Hog prices are above a parity with prices of products as there is some speculative demand and buyers will take advantage of temporary heavy runs to average down the cost of production now being accumulated. The number of hogs to be marketed is about the same as a year ago. Prospects favor some advance over the present level of around $9.75.

"Lamb prices declined $1 to $1.25 from the peak on December 28, as the magnet of higher prices, coupled with milder weather, attracted larger receipts. The large number of lambs on feed should temper views as to the extent of winter advance to be expected. Wool prices are holding steady to firm following the sale of five to six million pounds at Boston in the latter part of December."

"Wheat prices have held most of the gains made as a result of the extremely low foreign, Argentine and the support offered by the Federal Farm Board. Export demands remain rather spasmodic and of only moderate volume in the aggregate broader demand from Europe is expected in January. The domestic visible supply is decreasing slowly."

"Corn prices weakened at the close of December as a result of large deliveries on December contracts at Chicago and the lack of adequate storage space for conditioning arrivals which include much corn of high moisture content. Primary receipts since November 1 have been about one-third smaller than last year, reflecting the slow drying out of the crop and the tendency of producers to hold in expectation of high prices later on."

"What the egg market will do from day to day is anybody's guess. Slight increases in supply can be expected to bring sharp declines in prices while any spell of cold or stormy weather which will check the movement temporarily will result in burts of strength. The main trend from low on will be downward until prices reach the spring storage level."

"Butter prices have declined again although the severe cold weather in much of the chief dairying districts brought some curtailment in the make. The comparatively low prices paid to producers for butterfat probably will have a tendency to curtail feeding and may result in a lighter make. Dealers generally are not hopeful of much higher prices so long as supplies remain so liberal."

FARMER USING MORE MOTORS SURVEY SHOWS

Power Equipment Surpasses
Livestock, Research Foundation Finds

New York.—(UP)—Use of trucks and tractors on American farms has increased 127 per cent during the last five years, according to a survey made by the American Research Foundation, and announced here.

The survey figures do not represent increase in the number of tractors and tractors on farms but show the increase in total horsepower hours done by such equipment. It showed a decrease of more than 13 per cent in horsepower hours by work animals, such as horses and mules on farms during the last five years.

The survey says: "In 1924 horses and mules are credited with 9,440,000,000 horsepower hours but in 1929 this fell to 8,140,000,000 while trucks and tractors performed 2,950,000,000 horsepower hours in 1924 as compared with 6,700,000,000 in 1929. Work done by power equipment other than trucks and tractors was 4,030,000,000 horsepower hours in 1924 while in 1929 it had dropped to 3,680,000,000."

"This increased use of power equipment has caused the American farmer to become a close student of automotive problems, and today he gets far more efficient work out of his equipment than he did five years ago. For instance it has been generally discovered by farmers that the lubrication of his trucks and tractors is a far different problem than that of his passenger automobile. He has found that while he changes to a heavier oil in his passenger car at 2,000 miles, with the truck it is usually necessary to change to a heavier oil after it has been driven 500 to 1,000 miles and that a tractor needs a heavier oil after 200 hours of operation. Similarly, whereas the average passenger car needs a still heavier oil at about 12,000 miles, the truck needs heavier oil diet at a mileage of from 7,000 to 9,000."

"The East North Central States, composed of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin lead in the use of trucks and tractors as gauged by work done in these states, doing 51 per cent of the total horse power work on their farms with this kind of power equipment."

"The South Atlantic States rank second with 49 per cent; the New England states come next with 46 per cent although the actual amount of work done on farms is smaller than any other section of the United States. The Pacific Coast States of Washington, Oregon and California rank fourth with 44 per cent and the Middle Atlantic ranks fifth with 43 per cent."

"Considering the country as a whole, trucks and tractors performing 36 per cent of the work done on farms in 1929 as compared with 18 per cent in 1924."

FARM AND HOME WEEK AT STATE U. OPENS TODAY

Over 1000 Farmers Of State Expected To Attend Meet

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 13.—(AP)—More than 1,000 Illinois farmers and their wives are expected to attend the 33rd annual farm and home week sponsored by the College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois which opened a five day program today.

Utilization of farm products and by-products, the outlook of the soybean industry, means by which Illinois farmers may profit by action of the Federal Farm Board, and kindred topics were scheduled for discussion by national and state agricultural authorities.

More than 600 farmers competed in the Illinois seed grain show and in the tenth annual utility corn show in conjunction with the farm and home week activities. Premiums totalling $800 will be awarded prize winners. Selection of a "corn king" and of a "corn prince" will climax the program.

Wives and daughters of Illinois farmers will be recognized in the sessions Wednesday and Thursday when discussions will be devoted to topics of general interest to the farm home and farm family. Presentation of the Master Farm Homemaker awards will climax the women's program.

After Dean H. W. Mumford's welcoming address, Prof. Charles L. Stewart, an authority on agricultural economics, today pictured a possible world-wide operation of farmer-owned and farmer-controlled

Lowden, Hyde To Address Farm Meetings Jan. 20th

More thorough organization of producers into larger units with centralized control for marketing farm products and a new revenue system for the state, with taxation based on ability to pay, rather than upon property, are two major projects Illinois farmers will discuss when they gather at Springfield, Jan. 20, 30, and 31, for the annual convention of the Illinois Agricultural Association.

"These two problems are foremost. They overshadow all others in importance," declared Earl C. Smith, president of the association. "The first has for its purpose not only more efficient marketing of farm crops, but also control of surplus and making the tariff effective on agriculture products. We propose to continue our efforts until farmers receive an American price for what they sell, which means the world price plus the American tariff. This responsibility now accepted by the national government will not have achieved its purpose until this object is realized."

"The second great problem confronting us is to secure a revision of our antique, inequitable, and unjust taxing system. Only by constant reiteration of the truth and facts about our present system can we expect a reaction in sufficient volume to bring this about."

Ex-Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Oregon, Ill., will speak at the banquet on Jan. 30 on the subject, "Trends in Agriculture," with special reference to taxation and the farmer.

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde will be the luncheon speaker on the last day, addressing himself to the marketing problem. Secretary Hyde is expected to make the latest pronouncement on the administration's agricultural policy based on experiences of the federal farm board.

A third speaker, not yet selected, will cover the subject of transportation. Thus, marketing, taxation, and transportation, three questions of paramount interest, each of which deeply affects the welfare and prosperity of Illinois agriculture, will be given attention.

The opening day, Jan. 29, will be devoted largely to annual meetings, and the work of allied agricultural organizations, including mutual insurance service, centralized purchasing of commodities entering directly into farm production, cooperative auditing, and the Illinois Farm Bureau Baseball league.

Upwards of 5,000 delegates and visitors from the 95 organized county farm bureaus in the state are expected at the convention. On the second day the delegates will have their turn to discuss the policies of the state organization, project their ideas about future activities, and tell what they think of state and national questions.

"Our policies are determined at the annual meeting, where every member's voice may be heard," stated President Smith. "The I. A. A. convention is not a social gathering. It is a business meeting of thinking farmers, democratically controlled and responsive to the wishes of its members who live on the farms of Illinois."

marketing facilities as a result of the Federal Farm Board's program.

"How successful will be these national efforts in what may be called international price diplomacy, must be left to historians of tomorrow rather than to the prophet of today," he said. "Certain it is, however, that few such ambitious marketing ventures have ever been undertaken."

An address by Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, is on the program for tonight's meeting.

'DOC' COOK TO SEEK PAROLE FROM U. S. PEN

Explorer Eligible for Leniency
After Serving Part of Mail Fraud Term

Leavenworth, Kas.—(UP)—A grey haired doctor upon whose shoulders rested a wreath of roses and a halo of fame two decades ago, will some time this week stand before a prison pardon board here to plead for a "second chance."

"Doc" to thousands of inmates of this federal penitentiary he has succeeded during his term—will be one of 800 to appear before the parole board.

A patient man, kindly to the sick and suffering, Warden T. B. White reports he is a good prisoner. The warden is one of the three who will hear Cook's plea. Another on the board is Dr. C. A. Bennett, penitentiary physician and under whom Cook has worked since he was admitted on April 6, 1925. Cook is Prisoner 23,113 sentenced to serve 14 years nine months for misuse of the mails.

The sentence was the most severe ever given a person charged with violation of postal laws. Cook, charged similarly, have been sentenced from one to three years. Others charged with Cook in the oil promotion scheme were paroled three years ago. As a rule those who are charged with misuse of the mails are released on parole, if they are first offenders, after serving one-third of the time.

He was found guilty of misusing the mails as promoter of the Petroleum Producers association, a combine of defunct oil companies which he claimed had two 20,000 barrel gushers but which the prosecution disclosed could pump but 10 barrels daily.

Eighteen months ago the same jurist who sentenced Cook aroused a flicker of hope in the heart of the man who first claimed to reach the North Pole when he issued what he termed as a "Judge's parole." Before it could be acted upon and before Cook had made plans to leave the penitentiary, it was held the judge was without jurisdiction.

The day Cook entered Leavenworth the word was again acclaiming Admiral Robert E. Peary who had reached the North Pole 16 years before and who had announced that Cook's discovery claim was one of the world's greatest hoaxes.

Cook, years before being sentenced, had been discredited for a fake ascent of Mt. McKinley. The air of martyrdom which he assumed when he first entered the penitentiary has gradually disappeared. Here he has been one among thousands of inmates, the punishments others received he also received. Liberties taken from the prison population after trouble or riots have been taken from him also.

His literary and explorative bent has been exhausted by writing of the advantages of a "polar bear

Farmers' Egg Money Breaks Record of $560,600,000
Set in Year 1928

THE MARKET FOR EGGS IN 1929

American farmers experienced a good "egg money" year in 1929, setting a record better than in any previous year, according to a survey of egg production made by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute of Chicago. In 1928 the cash income from eggs was $560,000,000. That established a new high record, but in 1929 prices were high enough to offset a lighter production, and it is estimated that about ten million dollars were added to the 1928 record.

Receipts of eggs at the four leading markets in the first eleven months of 1929 were about 3 per cent less than in the corresponding period a year ago. Prices at times were the highest since 1920, and for the year averaged 5 per cent higher than in 1928, but distribution into consuming channels was practically the same as a year ago, showing thereby an increase in consumptive demand.

Due to unfavorable weather, receipts during the heavy storing season last spring failed to increase as rapidly as expected. Fewer eggs were stored than in any of the preceding seven years, and reserve stocks at the peak were a million and a half smaller than at the same time in 1928. This "shortage" in stocks was one of the sustaining factors in the market during the last months of the year.

The profits in 1930 may not measure up to 1929. High prices have stimulated an interest in poultry, and according to a government report of the situation, an increase of five per cent in the number of birds in farm flocks on January 1, 1930, is expected, so with normal weather, larger egg production is probable, the Institute points out.

Feed costs may be higher the first half of 1930, due to the smaller supplies available. The moderate reserves of storage eggs will act as a strengthening factor early in the year and the profitable outcome of last year will tend to make operations willing to buy eggs for storage at a good price. The situation indicates that the farmers who will find 1930 as profitable as 1929 are those who keep their cost of production at a minimum.

On March 5, 1930, he will be eligible to parole. He may not know of the disposition of his case for several weeks, the pardon board, which started sessions today may not hear his plea for several days.

AMERICAN CARS CONTINUE TO FLOOD EUROPE

Vigorous Action By European Manufacturers Fails to Stem Tide

BY HENRY CUMMING

(United Press Staff Correspondent) PARIS, —(UP)—Despite vigorous action by European motor manufacturers to stem the invasion of automobiles from the United States, American vehicles continue to pour into western and central Europe.

American manufacturers refused to become alarmed at the recent meeting in Brussels of the International Bureau of Motor Manufacturers, organized largely to combat the towering menace of American competition. The United States was not represented at the gathering of European automotive concerns, but leakage of information has assured American motor exporters that nothing was accomplished in the way of seriously curtailing American products.

Unable to Unite

It will be recalled that various efforts have been made by European industrialists in the past to create some sort of unified front against the increasing demand in Europe for American automobiles. The quota principle has been applied in one form or another in Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria. German manufacturers have for some time been insistently demanding centralized action throughout Europe in reducing to a definite number the importation of American cars.

The quota system as it operates at present in Poland authorizes importation from any one country to the extent of 500 tons per four months. Poland has designed this regulation, however, more for facilitating fiscal problems than to protect the Polish automobile industry.

Austria has for some time been limiting the importation of automobiles from any one country to 300 annually; the recent failure of the great Styr organization, however, is believed to have sounded the doom of this system. The Styr plant is to Austria what Citroen is to France, and what the Ford factories are to America.

Czechoslovakia has a 1,200-car restriction rule, but American automobile dealers have always found it very easy to obtain special licenses to exceed this number. Last year Czechoslovakia allowed the importation of 1,900 cars from the United States.

Fear Price Slashing
Automotive critics point out that the inability of the various countries to achieve even internal unity—notably France, where the Citroen firm still refuses to join the French Syndicate of Automobile Manufacturers—is a self-evident guarantee that international solidarity is no more than a glorious, but hazy, dream.

Individual countries undoubtedly will continue their efforts to limit American autos as much as possible; an increased tariff is already being considered by some of the more despairing nations. American manufacturers at present, though more concerned with combating the prevalent notion that automobiles will be sold for a song in 1930, on account of the Wall Street disasters. They heartily discourage the prospective buyer's idea that a few weeks will see the slashing and quartering of prices.

U. S. STEEL CONSUMPTION CONTINUES TO RISE

BY ALLARD SMITH

Vice President, The Union Trust Company, Cleveland, O.

THE amount of steel consumed by or for every man, woman and child in the United States in 1929 was 1000 pounds. This is larger by far than the amount used per capita by any other nation in the world. The American consumption of steel last year was the greatest on record, and it was more than three times the total at the beginning of this century.

The figure of per capita use of steel constitutes a telling measure of high American living standards. This is true because steel is the universal metal of modern life and as its use expands, so multiply comforts and conveniences in the form of motor cars, buildings and the countless other things in common use.

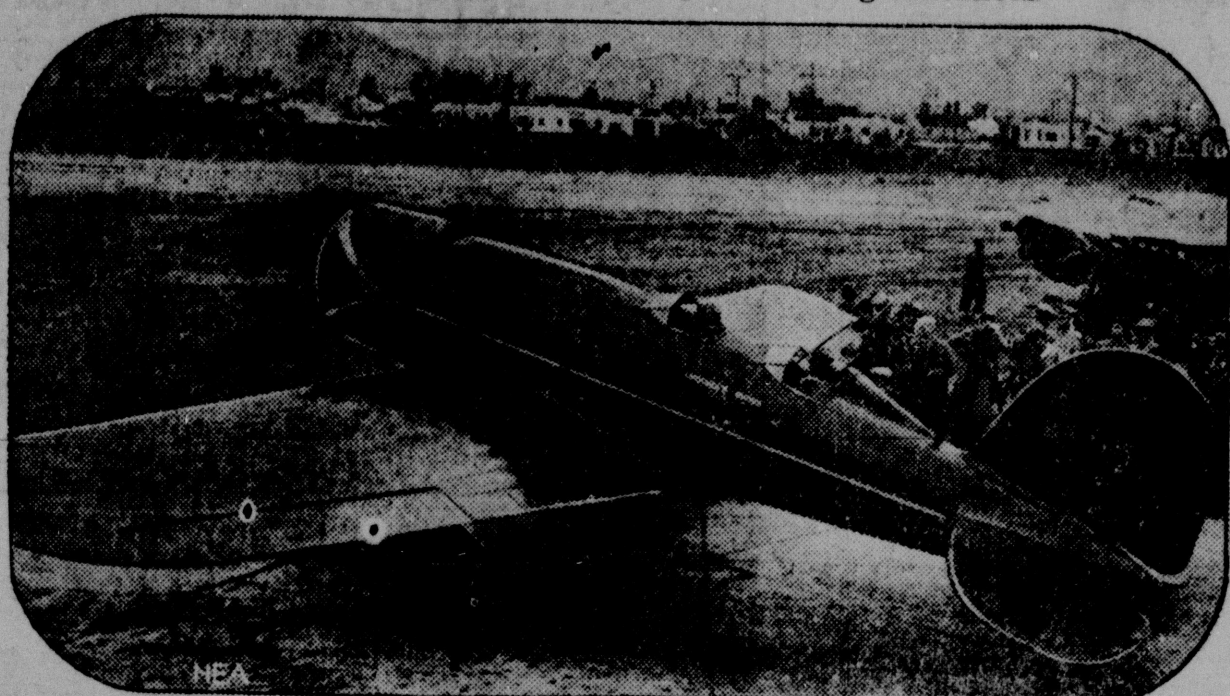

If any evidence were needed that Americans enjoy better living standards than peoples of other great nations, the facts of steel consumption would supply it. According to a compilation of Iron Trade Review, the average American consumed more than three times the amount of steel in 1929 than the average Frenchman. The American used more than twice that of the German and nearly 1 1/2 times as much as did the average person of Great Britain.

Compared with consumption of 1000 pounds per capita of steel in the United States in 1929, that for Great Britain was 580 pounds; that for Germany was 440 pounds, and that for France was 300 pounds.

In America per capita steel consumption has increased steadily over past decades. Fifty years ago, when the record was first begun, the average American used only about 40 pounds of steel every year. This was before the days of the automobile and the steel skyscraper. By 1890 the figure had grown to 150 pounds annually, but the great increase did not begin until the start of the present century which was to usher in the era of vast industrial expansion, and mass production and consumption of goods.

Chicago's Schools

May Close Feb. 1st.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—(UP)—School children of the second largest city in the United States probably will find public school doors locked against them on Feb. 1 because Chicago cannot beg or borrow enough money to keep its elementary educational institutions going.

Closing of the schools, mentioned as a dire possibility many times during the wrangling over the city's financial tangle, appeared a probability today as the school board was deadlocked over its 1930 budget and the Mayor and City Council were so busy squabbling over the municipal budget they had no time to consider ways to relieve the schools.

FOUR KILLED IN ATTEMPT TO ROB MINERS' PAYCAR

Car And Its Occupants Blown To Bits By Dynamite Blast

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Four men were dead today, victims of would-be robbers who yesterday dynamited a pay car of the Glen Alden Coal Company in an effort to obtain a $35,000 pay roll. Two others were injured, one critically.

All but about $3,000 of the money was saved by the heroism of one of the injured men. The missing money was believed to have been blown away by the blast. The dynamiters believed to have been four in number, escaped in an automobile. No trace of them had been found today.

The explosion occurred in a wild, mountainous section and rocked the district. The pay car was being hauled up a narrow gauge railroad by a mine motor to pay off several hundred workers. The dynamite placed under the track, was exploded by means of wires and a battery hidden behind a barbed wire fence.

The force of the blast wrecked the pay car. Without stopping, Harry Powell, motorman, proceeded to the colliery and spread the alarm.

Arthur W. Webb, 32, of Scranton, paymaster in charge of the car; Frank Bimski, 40, a miner and Martin Burns, 31, section foreman, were killed almost instantly. James Shovlin, 32, a section foreman, died a few hours later. His legs were blown off, his arms crushed and his skull fractured.

Fred Pfaff, 40, a guard on the car, was in a critical condition.

The payroll was saved by John Sookil, a 50-year-old miner, who was only slightly injured. Although dazed, he threatened away one of the bandits and stood over the iron-bound pay chest until posses arrived.

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. Grade yourself 20 for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it. Tomorrow we'll explain the mistakes and tell you the word. Then you can see how near a hundred you bat.

MONDAY'S CORRECTIONS

(1) The portrait of Thomas Jefferson, not Samuel, is on two-dollar bills. "Cheque" should be check, when it has reference to a lunch check. (3) The men at the right could not spend a new yellow-back, as all of the new bills are green-backs. (4) President Garfield's picture is not on any of the new bills. (5) The scrambled word is LIGHTNING.

TWO IN FAMILY MADE WELL AGAIN BY NEW KAVATONE

Husband and Wife Relieved of Nervousness Stomach and Kidney Trouble
by Master Medicine.

One of the happiest privileges of the Kavatone Man who is at Ford Hopkins Store, this city, where he is explaining daily to throngs of health-seekers the wonderful new remedy, is to hear the reports of those who have been restored to health by this modern remedy for ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

MR. AND MRS. W. W. HOPKINS.

Every day happy men and women return to tell what Kavatone has done for them. Among these are Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hopkins, 422 Bellevue Pl., Kalamazoo, Mich., who are glad and well again, free from pains and miseries that beset them. To the Kavatone Man this happy couple said: "You may be sure that Kavatone has turned our home from one of suffering to one of happiness, as my wife and myself are glad to testify. For a long time I suffered with stomach and kidney ailments, and rheumatism so bad I could hardly work. I had no appetite, and what I did force myself to eat would not digest and I suffered intensely from gas, bloating and choking sensations. My rest was so frequently broken at night that I lost in strength and ambition. I had, it seems, tried everything that was suggested, but instead of finding help I grew steadily worse.

"I had read and heard about Kavatone, the new medicine, and what it was doing for a number of people. I knew personally in Kalamazoo. I wondered if it would help me. Well, the results of the trial more than exceeded my fondest hopes. I took just four bottles and I am completely well. All pain has disappeared; my stomach and kidneys function as they should and with sleep and proper digestion. I am gaining daily in weight, energy and strength. When I saw what wonders Kavatone has done for me, I had my wife take it for her nervousness and rheumatism. Kavatone won another quick victory. Both of us are well and happy; do you wonder that we are eager to recommend Kavatone to all who suffer as we did? There can be no better medicine than Kavatone for Kavatone is perfect."

Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins' experience is just one of the many like it; cases the results of everything until Kavatone was used. Kavatone asks merely the opportunity to make you well. What this modern compound of 20 juices of leaves and herbs and other beneficial ingredients, has done for others it is ready to do for you. The Kavatone Man is a Ford Hopkins Co., where he is daily meeting the public and personally explaining the merits of this great preparation the famous Kavatone figure (an ingenious human torso showing every organ of the body) is used in this demonstration and everyone is cordially invited to see and study this figure an experience which will be interesting and instructive.

"JUNE MOON"

SELWYN THEATER, CHICAGO
That highly successful theatrical producer, Sam H. Harris, is presenting at the Selwyn Theater, Chicago, "June Moon," which has been unanimously declared by all Chicago critics as the funniest, smartest and wittiest play that has been seen in the Windy City for many a day.

The book of "June Moon" was written by two of America's best known humorists and playwrights, viz. Ring Lardner of "You Know Me, Al" fame and George S. Kaufman, dramatic editor of the New York Times and the most successful author of stage plays of the present day.

Last September Mr. Harris formed a company of "June Moon" and opened it at the Broadhurst Theater in New York, where it clicked from the start and ever since capacity houses have ruled.

The story of "June Moon" is replete with human interest, with countless laughs and an occasional tear and for those who enjoy infectious humor of the sparkling variety, "June Moon" is heartily recommended to all lovers of the theater. When the company in New York had been stamped by both critic and public as an enormous success, both from a financial as well as an entertainment of rare pleasure, Mr. Harris, the producer, formed a company for Chicago consumption, securing a cast of players that fit their respective roles with a glove-like nicety and which includes: James Spottwood, who last appeared in Chicago in "Excess Baggage"; Edith Arnold, last season with Richard Bennett in "Jarnegan"; Edward Woods, who has appeared in Chicago in "Cradle Snatchers"; "The Spider" and "Broadway"; Edith Van Cleave, who was with Jane Cowell in "Smilin' Thru"; Ruth Holden, last appearing in Chicago in support of George Jessel in "The Jazz Singer"; also prominent in the cast are Murray Smith, Fred Irving Lewis, John Daly Murphy, Ross Hertz, Harold Graub, Cyrena Smith and Beatrice Powers.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

After a whirlwind courtship, JUDITH CAMERON, typist in a New York publishing office, is married to ARTHUR KNIGHT, executive of the firm. Knight is a widower, father of two children, TONY, his 18-year-old daughter, is in Europe, and JUNIOR, 16, is attending school.

Judith has no intimate friends, though on several occasions she keeps mysterious appointments with a young man known as DAN. Judith and Arthur sail for a honeymoon in Bermuda. The first week is a paradise of sunny days and moonlit nights. Then comes a change in which Tony Knight announces she is sailing for home. Knight says he and Judith must return to meet Tony's boat. Since neither of Knight's children has been told about the marriage, Judith is skeptical of her welcome. Knight has no such worries and begins making eager plans for Christmas which is only one week distant. Immediately after landing they drive to Knight's Long Island home. MRS. WHEELER, the housekeeper, shows Judith over the large house. Knight rushes off to the city and Judith has her first meal in her new home alone.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI

TRUE to his word, by a quarter of four o'clock that afternoon Arthur Knight reached home.

He came into the living room in high spirits, rubbing his hands together to warm them, cheeks glowing from exposure to the cold wind and strode over to the fireplace.

"Whew!—it's getting cold out side," he told Judith. He said it as a man who is acclimated to long cold winters and enjoys them. "Hope there isn't going to be a storm to tie up Tony's boat tomorrow morning. December's an awful time to cross the Atlantic," he added.

Judith dropped the notebook in which she had been scribbling and came over to her husband. Carelessly he slipped an arm about her, dropped a kiss on the radiant, glossy head and held her close in one of the silent little moments of tenderness she had learned to love. "Everything all right at the office?" she asked.

"Oh, yes! I caught Hunter just as I hoped to. Wants to have us out to dinner next week. His wife will be getting in touch with you, I guess. Yes, everything's going splendidly. That new elementary science series is going to. It's catching on like wildfire, they say. That's one time, my dear, your husband knew what he was talking about."

He went ahead, talking of contracts and re-orders and new shipments.

"And what have you been doing all this long afternoon?" he finally paused to inquire.

"Oh, I've been so busy! I've seen the whole house, Arthur—every room. And I talked to Harriet and to Cora and went over all sorts of things with Mrs. Wheeler. My, but she's an efficient person!"

THEY talked then about Judith's allowance for the house. It was a liberal sum but the young wife was determined to be quite business-like. Every bill and every household expense was to be paid from her own budget. It was this about which she had been scribbling in her notebook before Knight's arrival.

At seven o'clock that evening Judith Knight presided over dinner in her own home for the first time. She had made such eager plans for that dinner and entered the dining room with high color and a rapidly beating heart.

She took her seat at the head of the table and Knight drew out his chair opposite.

"Looking very pretty tonight,

Looking neither to left nor right, the girl marched past Judith and into the house.

Judith."

The girl blushed. "Thank you, kind husband," she said mischievously. She had hoped he would say that! Judith wore a frock of marine blue flat crepe, the simplest of dinner gowns, with a crystal bow on the left shoulder and knots of velvet ribbon for its only additional trimming. The color was flattering and darkened the shade of her deep blue eyes.

Through misted lashes she glanced happily across at Knight. The mist signified happiness.

Very different, that table looked from its appearance at noon. A low flaring bowl of silver stood in the center and from it arose a mound of tiny pink rosebuds, clusters of forget-me-nots and airy maidenhair fern.

Close to the bowl were four low candlesticks, each bearing a lofty white taper. Their flames lit the room, casting into shadow the somber background but adding glints of fire to crystal glassware and shedding mellow warmth across the table.

Harriet began serving the meal. Judith Knight was proud of the menu, hoping Cora had made no mistakes. She had planned the meal with regard to Arthur's taste. She knew he liked to start dinner with an oyster cocktail and the blue points were properly laid. There was a consommé, roast beef not over-done but quite tender, vegetables, a salad and cheese served with Bar-le-Duc jelly and wafers.

They had coffee in the living room before the fireplace. Both of them sat on the big divan and watched the dancing firelight. They sat there a long while after Harriet had taken away the coffee tray.

"Ought to turn in early tonight," he said before long. "Tony's ship is supposed to dock at nine o'clock. We'll want to get there before that time."

JUDITH HEESITED.

"I've been thinking about that, Arthur," she said. "Don't you think you'd better go alone to meet Tony? Of course you know I'd like to be there. But the child doesn't know—well, she's never even heard of me. It would be embarrassing to see and hear the news all at once."

"Well—if you're sure you'd rather have it that way—"

"I'm sure it's best."

"All right, dear. I think perhaps you're right."

What a jewel she was, Knight thought to himself. Always tactful. He had had his own misgivings on the subject of greeting Tony, then suddenly saying, "Here, daughter. Look, I've brought you a new mother."

They watched the leaping flames grow lower and lower. Then at 10 o'clock they mounted the stairway.

The first day in the new home had been encouraging. Judith later, drifting to sleep, smiled dreamily and thought how foolish her fears had been.

It seemed no time at all before sunlight was pouring in at the windows. The girl rubbed her eyes and saw Arthur standing across the room in his dressing gown. He caught her eye.

TREASURY-P. O. APPROPRIATION BILL REPORTED

Carries No Increase For Enforcement Of Prohibition Law

Washington, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Carrying no increase in outlay for prohibition enforcement, the Treasury-Postoffice annual supply bill for the fiscal year 1931, providing $1,147,778.692 was reported today to the House by its Appropriations committee.

The measure set aside $835,494,077 for the Postoffice Department, an increase of $17,478,352 over the appropriations for the current year; and $312,284,615 for the Treasury Department, a decrease of $5,371,919. The total for the two departments however is $13,073,950 less than the budget estimates.

The permanent and indefinite appropriations for the Treasury which are made automatically, totaled $1,280,328,935, a decrease of $25,840,347. In this sum $619,000,000 is set aside for interest on the public debt and $395,624,000 is provided for the sinking fund.

$15,000,000 For Dry Law
Although only $15,000,000 is carried in the regular appropriations for prohibition enforcement, the same as provided for the current year, the sum of $32,123,404 is allotted the Coast Guard, of which $16,807,190 is designated for anti-smuggling work. The Coast Guard appropriations proposed is $2,452,869 more than that for the current year and provides for an increase of 110 enlisted men, 23 new commissioned officers, 35 additional cadets at the Coast Guard Academy. The committee pointed out in its report that the increase in enlisted men will not be necessitated by the addition of three new cutters in 1931.

The Customs Service was allotted $22,952,160, an increase of $579,300 over the current year to provide for additional personnel to take care of growing demands at ports.

In discussing prohibition enforcement, the committee's report said the present personnel of the Treasury Department, increased by 275 additional employees under a previous deficiency appropriation, could be continued. It set aside, however, $13,338,740 for prohibition work and $1,661,260 for narcotic law enforcement.

New New Buildings
Contrary to the usual Treasury-Postoffice supply measures the bill does not provide for the undertaking of any new public building projects. It allotted $48,709,390 for public building projects now under way, a decrease of $8,538,980 under the current year.

The committee pointed out however that additional appropriations for new projects are expected to be submitted later during this session after the bill passed by the House providing for a public building program totaling $230,000,000 is finally enacted.

The established projects, for the continuance of which funds are appropriated in the bill, include Federal buildings at the following places: Indiana: Anderson, East Chicago, Fort Wayne, Hammond, Kokomo, LaFayette, Rushville, South Bend. Illinois: Aurora, Bloomington, Carbondale, Chicago, Freeport, Ottawa, Springfield, Waukegan. Iowa: Cedar Rapids, Mason City, Fairfield, Iowa City. Wisconsin: Appleton, Kenosha, La Crosse, Marshfield, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Racine. Missouri: Kansas City, St. Louis, Sedalia, Trenton.

It was estimated that the revenues from the postal service would amount $754,400,000 during the fiscal year 1931 and the amount carried in the bill for that service is $835,500,000 showing a prospective deficit of $81,000,000.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

Where 70 Children Died in Fire Panic

The moving picture being shown that day was titled, ironically enough, "The Crowd." And as this picture was taken, the bodies of more than 70 dead and dying children still choked the aisles and stairways of the Glen Cinema house in Paisley, Scotland, where a small fire started a frantic stampede for exits among more than 1500 boys and girls at a special holiday performance. Here you see anxious relatives outside the theater immediately after the panic, which was one of the greatest theater disasters in modern Europe. Allen Bebbie, below, left, a football star, and Isa Muir, extreme right, candy salesgirl in the theater, both are credited with saving the lives of many children. That the panic did not assume even greater proportions was credited in part to the coolness displayed by James Glen, a theater attendant, shown in the center as he was questioned by a police official.
